Her second and third letters are very lengthy and reflect extremely idealistic views on such matters as crime, prison reform, inadequate parole boards, unfair criminal sentences, police activities, and the Vietnam war. She advocates non-violence and writes disparagingly of the Black Panther Party with its hero worship and militarism.

[redacted] in turn, apparently is seeking to encourage her cooperation making frequent reference to the "alternatives" open to her. She, however, indicates she will not "rat" on anyone. Both make reference to the Media RA burglary March 8, 1971, she acknowledging the names of individuals in FBI records should not be made public, and [redacted] commenting on the slanted articles appearing in the press. Both made frequent references on a first name basis to other FCC members and individuals known to be associated with the FCC and the East Coast Conspiracy to Save Lives (ECCSL). ]

In sworn affidavit, SA [redacted] explains he became closely associated with not only [redacted] but other FCC members during the course of [redacted] and the subsequent trial from November 16, 1970, through December 3, 1970. He conducted intensive interviews with each after sentencing in connection with various other break-ins and vandalisms throughout the country. He advised he did not respond to her Christmas card but after receiving her letter of February 21, 1971, and knowing her past role among the activists, her ECCSL association, and the fact she may have knowledge relative to the Media RA break-in, he decided to respond in an attempt to lay ground work for eventual successful interview. [redacted] admits he did not make record of his correspondence with his superiors but acknowledges discussing situation March 17 and 18, 1971, with Department Attorney William Connelly, who is assisting in the ECCSL case. Connelly allegedly indicated he would seek Bureau authority for [redacted] to interview [redacted] at Alderson. According to [redacted] he was motivated throughout this matter to ]

Our Philadelphia Office, pursuant to a search warrant issued by Federal Magistrate Edward R. Furia on May 16, 1971, seized at [redacted] Pennsylvania, Xeroxed materials identifiable with 18 documents not previously known stolen Media Resident Agency. These documents were prepared by our Training Division in support of our Field Police Training Program. Copies of identified documents have been forwarded to you in accordance with established procedure. ✓

Enclosed for your information are three Xerox copies of articles published in "The New York Times" on May 18, 1971, and "The Washington Post" on May 19, 1971, which contain excerpts from several of the identified documents. The excerpted materials are patently distorted taking them out of context. The articles state that the National Action Research on the Military-Industrial Complex (NARIC), an agency of the American Friends Service Committee in Philadelphia, received the documents from the Citizens Commission to Investigate the FBI. According to "The New York Times" article, NARIC is incorporating several of the documents stolen in a booklet to be entitled, "Police on the Homefront". Without doubt, this booklet will contain comparable patently distorted excerpts as evidenced in the published articles as reportedly interpretations of the documents by an unnamed spokesman for NARIC.
